Apply for the Job You Want

When you find a vacancy matching your career goals and skill levels, read the “Who May Be Considered” section of the announcement. This is important because a Federal agency may make a vacancy available only to current government employees (“Status Candidates”); or, they may choose to accept applications only from qualified individuals who are already employees of the hiring agency.

Review the instructions found in the “How to Apply” tab, then click “Apply Online.”

How to Apply

WHAT TO EXPECT NEXT:

Note: Please ensure that you follow the "how to apply" section of this announcement and complete the entire application process. If you fail to complete the questionnaire and submit a resume (and/or Veterans' Documentation if applicable) this will affect your eligibility.

Once you have completed the application process you will be notified by email. Your application will remain in the inventory of tentatively qualified applicants. As requests to fill vacancies are processed your application will receive consideration based on your questionnaire responses and the organizational components, location and grade levels you selected. If you are among the best qualified your application will be referred to the selecting official for employment consideration. You will be notified each time your name is referred for consideration. If further evaluation or interviews are required you will be contacted. Once you accept a job offer you will not receive further consideration under this announcement unless you re-apply.

e-Scholar is the “Umbrella Term” that encompasses Jobs, Apprenticeships, Cooperative Education, Fellowships, Grants, Internships, and Scholarships within the Federal Government.

It is a link to educational opportunities available to all eligible students from high school through doctorate levels, leading toward a career profession.

To find out about the educational opportunities available, visit e-Scholar at <http://www.studentjobs.gov/e-scholar.asp>

e-Scholar provides information on the following types of programs:

Apprenticeships provide an individual the opportunity to learn and obtain qualifications in a specified trade or craft. These opportunities vary in length from agency to agency.

Cooperative Education provides the opportunity for the student, educational institution, and a Federal department or agency to enhance a student’s career through a combination of classroom studies and on-the-job training. Students can serve our Nation while receiving experience for future employment opportunities.

Fellowships provide an individual the opportunity to serve in an ideal setting for advanced subspecialty training. Individuals are given the opportunity to study and gain invaluable insight into a particular field of study. These programs can last six weeks to several years.

Grants provide funds to an individual, a group of individuals, or an organization, usually for a specific project. Monetary grants are given to assist in paying for education, or research and development projects. In some cases, grant awards do not require repayment.

Additional grant opportunities are available on www.Grants.gov

Internships provide an individual with a monitored or supervised work or service experience where the individual has intentional learning goals and reflects actively on what he or she is learning throughout the experience. These learning goals can include: academic learning, career development, skill development, and personal development.

Scholarships provide funds to an individual who has demonstrated high academic achievement and the desire to further their education in a field of study. Scholarships may be awarded up to four years.

Opportunities for EVERYONE!
